Condemned's Hope of Addressing Pardons Court
Are Coldly Dashed

MEET AT STATE HOUSE

To Pass Final Decision On His Doom Next
Saturday

By Kenneth Downs
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 9.—(INS)— Bruno Richard Hauptmann will have to sit in the death house of the State Prison Saturday while the State Court of Pardons passes final decision on whether he must die in the electric chair for the murder of Baby Lindbergh.

His fond hope of being able to address the court personally to plead for his life will be coldly dashed.

These were the emphatic statements today of a state official connected with the Hauptmann case.

"The Court of Pardons positively will not meet in the State Prison to consider Hauptmann's case," the official said. "The court has not even asked whether there might be suitable accommodations for such a hearing in the prison."

"The court will meet in the State House Saturday and this means that Hauptmann will not be heard. The Governor has said the prisoner cannot be taken away from the prison except on a court order from the trial judge."

Calls On Sister; Finds Her Dead, Sitting in Chair

MORRISVILLE, Jan. 9.—Calling on his sister, a retired school teacher, yesterday afternoon, George W. Robbins, of the River Road, Yardley, found her dead, sitting in a Morris chair.
The sister, Miss Ida J. Robbins, of Wood and Washington streets, Morrisville, died sometime the preceding night, Deputy Coroner Lawler, Bristol, said.

The coroner expressed the belief she died of a heart attack. She was in her sixties and had been retired for 25 years. She taught grade school at Penn's Manor, her former home, for nearly 20 years.

Miss Robbins lived with a sister, Miss Rose T. Robbins, in a house formerly the rectory for Holy Trinity Catholic Church. Rose had been away from home Tuesday and yesterday, visiting with a cousin, Mrs. Samuel Sleath, at Amber, Pa. The brother, a retired farmer, stopped at the Morrisville home on one of his periodic calls.
He summoned Dr. George A. Enion, who notified Dr. Lawler.

Miss Robbins was born in Penn's Manor, the daughter of the late James and Catherine Robbins. She was a graduate of West Chester Normal School. Besides the brother and sister mentioned, she leaves two other sisters, Mrs. Charles W. Collins, of Middletown, Del., and Mrs. William A.
Buckman, of St. Petersburg, Fla., and a nephew.

The funeral will be Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

column is economical and profitable.

Ice Jam Keeps Tanker From Docking at Trenton

Trenton authorities received a request yesterday to aid in breaking up the Delaware River ice jam at a point above the recently opened channel to clear the way for an oil tanker to a dock above the municipal wharf.

Working for three days over the past week-end, ice boats succeeded in clearing the channel to the Marine Terminal, but the ice remained locked fast above that point. Trenton City Engineer Joseph E. English characterized it as the "most stubborn" jam he had ever seen in the river.

With the 200,000-gallon tanker standing by waiting for an entry and the oil company's supply getting low yesterday, the city's aid was solicited.
City Manager Paul Morton said it would be necessary to summon the ice boat from Philadelphia for another day's work in order to open the jam and that the city could not afford the additional expense of more than $500.
State aid to pay for the approximate $1,700 expense thus far is hoped for, but Morton said the city could not risk incurring any additional cost.

"In Old Kentucky," Best of Rogers Films, Is Here

Flying hoofs, young romance and adventure under sunny southern skies fill the moving scenes of Will Rogers', last and greatest picture, "In Old Kentucky," which comes tonight to the Grand Theatre.

Adapted from the Charles T. Dazey play which has retained its hold on America's affection for 30 years, "In Old Kentucky" presents Rogers in his most whimsical, lovable role—as an old timer who knew everything about horses, and quite a little about youngsters in love.

Dorothy Wilson and Russell Hardie share the romantic leads in the film.
Prominently cast in supporting roles are Charles Sellon, Louise Henry and Bill Robinson, the world's greatest tap dancer.

EARTHQUAKE SHOCK OPENED NEWS FOR MONTH OF NOVEMBER IN THIS AREA; WAS FIRST TREMOR OF THE SORT EXPERIENCED BY HUNDREDS IN SECTION

Outstanding Among the Month's News Was the Burning to Death of a Woman in Her Trevores Home—Eckert, Held in Connection With Murder Case, Was Operated On

An earthquake shock opened the first day of November in this section, and therefore ranked among the first news of that initial day.

Also outstanding in the news of the month was that of a Trevores woman burning to death when her home was destroyed by fire; and the operation performed upon a man being held in Doylestown jail in connection with a murder case.

The review of the month's news follows:

1st—Earthquake shocks which rocked the Eastern section of the country during the early morning hours were felt in Bristol.

Three young men from Trenton and one from Morrisville were taken into custody, charged with attacking and robbing Mrs. Dominick Kay, 56, near Morrisville. The alleged robbery occurred August 21st. The quartet was charged with stealing $52 in cash and jewelry valued at $1,000.

2nd—Charles Kogel, Croydon, was given a quartermaster Seascot award.

3rd—A class of 12 was confirmed by Bishop Taft at Grace P. E. Church, Hulmeville. The total confirmed at that church in 97 years was 423.

4th—Alfred H. Luff, of the Newtown-Richboro Road, sustained burns about the hands during a fire at his farm.
The blaze destroyed the machine shop and wagon house; two automobiles, a tractor, and implements also being prey of the flames.

4th—It was stated that the three-day marriage law was causing a loss of business at the county seat of Bucks, many couples going to other states. The number of licenses granted at Doylestown for October, 1935, was 137, as compared to 238 the previous year.

5th—At a session of miscellaneous court, Judge Calvin S. Boyer filed an opinion, and the court made an order authorizing the taking over of Maple street, Bensalem Township, as a public road. The owners had filed a plan of the street with the supervisors and asked for their approval of the plan.
The approval was granted, and the petitioners won their point in spite of remonstrance on the part of some residents of the section.

In elections throughout the county the Republicans were generally successful, carrying the county by 5,000.
Bristol was won for the G. O. P. by 500 votes. Sunday movies also won during the election in the borough.

Four men received burns, and a fifth was cut by glass during a blaze which destroyed a barn and garage on the farm of Michael Nemet, between Yardley and Fallsington. The fire was caused by a gasoline explosion. None of those hurt were seriously injured.

6th—A Trevores Heights resident, Mrs. Clarence Clemmons, 60, was burned to death when fire destroyed her home. The lifeless body was found after the fire had been extinguished.

7th—Another teacher was added to the faculty of Bristol Township public schools, namely Miss Estella Rouck, Tacony, who was engaged to teach at Maple Shade buildings.

Bristol Branch, Needlework Guild of America, far surpassed the total of garments shown at the 1934 exhibit, having 4,701 gathered, or an increase of 532.

Doylestown received a view of how the PWA was wasting funds, a 12-car train of Philadelphia workers being dumped into the county seat, with no work planned. This occurred on two consecutive days.

8th—Arlington L. Lewis, 13, Quaker-town, and Geraldine Moyer, 13, Telford, were rewarded with Carnegie medals and $500 in cash each, for their daring rescue of Donald I.
Kachline, 4, of Quakertown, on July 16th. The child narrowly escaped death by drowning.

9th—Miss Peace Canby and Mrs.
Joseph P. Canby, Hulmeville, narrowly escaped injury and possible death, when the brake shoe of a passing train was hurled through the windshield of their automobile at Morrisville, breaking a portion of the steering wheel, and crashing out the side door. The two were showered with glass.

11th—Three days' observance of Armistice season was ended here. Veterans groups held special services, and dinner, in honor of the occasion.
Mrs. Louis C. Spring, Radcliffe street, died suddenly of pneumonia at a Newark, N. J., hospital. She had been suddenly stricken ill after arrival in the New Jersey city for a visit.

Bristol borough council was asked by Jefferson avenue residents to halt extension of house line in the 300 block of that avenue. The petition was signed by 26 residents.

Yardley W. C. T. U. marked its golden anniversary with a special program.

12th—The Needlework Guild at Edgely had 1515 articles on display at its annual exhibit at the home of Mrs.
Thomas G. Hawkes.

Education Week was being observed in Bristol schools, with special programs being given.

Sixty-six students and teachers registered for the annual meeting of the Student Writers' Assembly of Bucks County, this being held at Bensalem Township high school.

Robert "Flatnose" Eckert, a gangster arrested on the charge of murder and being an accessory after the fact, was operated upon at Abington Hospital for appendicitis. Eckert was hurried from Doylestown jail to the hospital. He was being held in the William Weiss case.

13th—Two hundred fathers and sons attended their annual banquet in Bristol Presbyterian Church.
One hundred men were engaged in

FERRY DECLINES JOB OF COUNTY AUDITOR

Morrisville Man Was Elected
At General Election Held In November

TO BE SCHOOL DIRECTOR

MORRISVILLE, Jan. 9.—Because the offices of borough school director and county auditor are incompatible, Leonard Ferry, of this place, who was elected at the last general election to both these offices, did not take the oath of office for the county position this week when the other county officials took their seats, but he has decided to retain his office as school director and remain here to serve his constituents at home. It is understood the Court will fill the vacancy. At the time of the election it was not discovered that the two offices were incompatible, but since the election Mr. Ferry has learned that he could not hold both offices.

Funeral services for William H.
Stradling, high constable of Morrisville and county constable in the First Ward, will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from his late home, 125 Centre street. Interment will be in Morrisville Cemetery.

Constable Stradling, who was 71 years old, died Tuesday evening at his home, from complications and pneumonia. He had been ill for the past six months. He was a lifelong resident here and for the past 35 years was constable. Prior to the organization of the borough police department, Strad-ling was head of the police, and had charge of all police work. For a number of years he was employed as a foreman at the Vulcanized Rubber Company. His survivors are two sons, John and Harry, of Morrisville; two daughters, Mrs. Wilbur King, of Asbury Park, and Mrs. Michael Wallace, of Morrisville; two brothers, George W. of Hatboro, and James G. Strad-ling, of Orange, N. J.

MORRISVILLE R. R. YARDS ARE SHOWN IN REPLICA

Most of Equipment Built By Lewis V. Townsend, 804
Mansion Street

MADE POSITION SIGNALS

A replica of the Pennsylvania Railroad yards at Morrisville is to be found under the Christmas tree at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis V. Townsend, 804 Mansion street.

Eight years ago work was started on the buildings and other intricate pieces by Mr. Townsend, a railroad employee who is thoroughly familiar with the yards to the north of Bristol.
And with such rapid strides in railroad equipment in that period Mr.
Townsend finds its rather difficult, as he adds to the display year after year, to keep the pace.

But the visitor will find nevertheless the round-house with the turn-table that operates so well; the sub-station controlling all the lights and trains; two flood light towers; three position light signals which are most unique and unusual for a miniature train setup; a signal house; an elevated bridge by means of which pedestrians may cross the tracks in safety; a coal wharf and approach; a replica of the bridge which crosses the canal.

The buildings, bridges, ties, etc., Mr.
Townsend has fashioned of wood, and painted red.

The position light signals, three in all, register the position of the trains, showing "clear," "approach," and "stop." With great ingenuity were these brought into reality by the Man-

Authoress Asks That Road Be Closed; Wants Privacy

DUBLIN, Jan. 9.—The site of the 100-year-old farm home of the authoress, Pearl Buck, was visited yesterday by a jury of view appointed by the Bucks County Court to hear her petition that a quarter-mile county road leading to the residence be closed.

The author of "The Good Earth," who is the wife of Richard J. Walsh, informed the jury of view that the road was little used, and was practically nothing but a lane when she moved there. But since that time she informed the jury, she has been embarrassed continually by people "nosing" into her affairs. Telling that she wished to avoid the crowds, and live a quiet life she stated "I do most of my writing here. I want to be unmolested and live life in privacy."

Should no protests be forthcoming, after the jury of viewers makes its report to the county court, the road will be closed to the public.

Announce Ethiopian Victory

Addis Ababa, Jan. 9.—An Ethiopian victory on the Southern front was announced today at Harar.

Troops under the command of Ras Tafari defeated an Italian detachment at Kerele, the official announcement said.

A number of Italians and Somali warriors were slain and a portable wireless transmission set was captured.

From all over Abyssinia messages came in today telling of heavy rains that impeded Italian troop activity.
Low hanging clouds made visibility bad, halting aerial action. It has rained for a week at Harar, and the mud has halted all traffic.

Through rifts in the clouds, however, the natives saw a partial lunar eclipse and prayed that this might be no evil for Abyssinia.

BILKED

How many pork chops and hams, loaves of bread, steaks and roasts of beef—not to mention all the other foodstuffs—have Americans been forced to deny themselves by edict of Roosevelt?

When the occupant of the White House embarked on a vote-buying spree by paying farmers for not growing crops with money mulcted from the consumers of the nation, he started something far-reaching, but apparently not far-reaching enough. The Supreme Court has thrown this soviet scheme out the window, and the election is still ten months in the future!

Mrs. and Mr. Consumer made their heavy contributions to the cause of the New Deal in vain. They were bilked, and the New Deal must find other means of buying the election next fall.

While the tariff barriers are being let down and foreign foodstuffs are pouring into the country to benefit by the artificially created high prices, how fares the American farmer? Instead of the "farm prosperity" so glowingly promised him by the voice and the smile in 1932, he was put upon a dole and told that if he as much as squeaked it would be taken away from him.

Instead of prosperity, the farmer was given charity and regimented even as the peasant of Soviet Russia. If he sowed an extra kernel of oats, he must burn the crop or go to jail. If his litter of pigs turned out to be seven instead of five, he must pronto kill the extra two or suffer dire consequences from the Wallace-Tugwell chieftain.

But the Supreme Court has spoken! The Constitution has been upheld, as all Americans have known all this time it would be. The voice and the smile can commandeer all the radio stations in the land and command all the rubber stamps of Congress to assemble for a royal ukase, but its dulcet tones can not charm the Supreme Court of the United States. Its demagoguery falls sourly upon the ears of the nine great men who are doing their duty so nobly at Washington.

Outlawing of the AAA by the Supreme Court in terms so sweeping that enactment of any new legislation along similar lines would be palpably unconstitutional—and easily stopped by Federal court injunction—eight months after the Supreme Court death blow to the NRA, has bombed Roosevelt's chances for re-election. His nostrums, panaceas and deliberate efforts to sabotage the constitution of the United States make his retention in the highest office of the land after the next election unthinkable.

Barring rabble-rousing moves from the chief New Dealer, business should begin another upward climb on the heels of the AAA decision, similar to that which set in immediately after the outlawing of the NRA.

It is daily becoming clear to millions who, against their better judgment, have been pretending to see something good in the reform moves of the administration at Washington that the depression will end next November if Franklin D. Roosevelt is repudiated by the voters.

The year's events have made Haile Selassie so thorough a cynic, we wouldn't be surprised if he just neglected to write to Santa Claus this time.

"HIGH SCHOOL TRAGEDY"

by MAXINE CANTY

SYNOPSIS

Julie Martin, she's all of 17, is relating what happened after her French teacher, pretty Constance (Connie) Sinclair, was found shot dead at a desk in her (Miss Sinclair's) apartment. Julie has started her mother and interests her father, a lawyer, by telling that she and her boy friend, Dicky Ward, had visited the apartment the previous afternoon, a few hours before the murder. She had returned a fountain pen which she had borrowed from Miss Sinclair. Newspaper reports make known that the teacher was slain about 10 o'clock that night. The police went to the apartment upon receipt of a mysterious telephone call informing them that Miss Sinclair had been slain. Julie's young brother, Allen, also a high school pupil, leaves the breakfast table soon after the family starts discussing the tragic news. Classes did not amount to much that day. Julie, an assistant after hours in Principal Perkins' office, is summoned by him to meet Police Inspector O'Brien who is beginning the investigation. This is Julie's account of their first interview:

CHAPTER II

Inspector O'Brien was rather nice, awfully gentle and quite unlike a detective while he was talking to me. He asked me to sit down. Mr. Perkins coughed nervously. He said, "I'm sorry, Julie, that you must go through this. I did not suppose any students would be questioned."

"Every angle is worth investigating in a case like this," said Mr. O'Brien pleasantly. "I don't mind," I hastened to assure him. He smiled. "Suppose you tell us all you know about Miss Sinclair, Julie," the Inspector suggested. He took a paper from his pocket, a sheet of writing paper in pale green covered with fine, web-like lines in black ink. It was very peculiar penmanship, almost like engraving. Somehow it seemed familiar.

"I believe you visited Miss Sinclair with a friend about 4:30 yesterday afternoon," he stated, consulting the paper. This time I saw the signature, Anna Sardon. It was evidently a signed statement from her.

"Yes," I said, and then I told him about the pen, blushing a little in front of Mr. Perkins. He didn't seem to be listening. So I went on without much embarrassment.

"So you returned the pen to her later?"

"Yes, sir, Dicky—Richard Ward—and I met Miss Sinclair on the steps of the apartment house and we all went in together."

"Did Miss Sinclair unlock the apartment house door?"

"No, nor the one to her apartment either."

"The Inspector made a note. "Rather strange," he commented. "She said the apartment door was always open. There are only four apartments, and whoever comes in at 11:00 o'clock at night turns the latch on. After that she said one had to have a key."

"Easy then for anyone to enter," said Mr. Perkins.

"Well," I hesitated.

"Yes?" prompted the Inspector.

"Not so easy, at least it wasn't for us."

"Why not?"

"Because Mrs. Sardon popped out her door as we were going up the stairs. She scared me. Miss Sinclair laughed and said that she always did that. She said she was used to it now, but that it bothered her at first. I guess that is the way an apartment house manager has to do to know what is going on."

The Inspector smiled, but Mr. Perkins just looked out of the window. I thought I'd better hurry on to the important things.

"Miss Sinclair said, too, that she herself had always lived in a house, and that she could never remember to lock her own door, even at night."

"It would be interesting," mused the Inspector, "to know how many people knew of that careless habit of hers."

"Oh, I imagine a good many," I chimed in, for which I had some regrets later, "for Dicky said she laughed about it in class one day."

"And what class is he in?" inquired the officer.

I told him. He asked Mr. Perkins for the enrollment list of that group, and the Principal got it from the outer office. The Inspector looked it over without commenting.

I told him that while we were there, Miss Sassa and Miss Whelton, who lived across the hall, came in to invite Miss Sinclair to a movie, but that she refused because she had some letters to write. The Inspector nodded and told Mr. Perkins they had called again on their way out, but that she had refused again for the same reason. I read more in the evening paper about the letter she was writing.

"The teachers stopped at about 7:00 o'clock. There was another caller about 8:00 who left at 8:30," he consulted Mrs. Sardon's paper reading from the Book Shop; they rent books out, you know. It was a biography of the man who wrote 'Moby Dick.'"

"Herman Melville," said Mr. Perkins. "I found that book on her desk this morning. If you don't want it, Inspector, I'll return it to the Shop."

"No, I don't believe it would be of any use to us. Well, Miss Julie, I guess that's all. You have been very helpful, and I may need you again. Now, if Melvin Wright is waiting outside, send him in, will you?"

"Yes, sir. Goodbye. Do call me if I can help any more."

again as he made this statement: "As far as we know, this person was the last to see her alive, if this person happened to be the murderer."

I was all trembly with the thought of hearing about the case direct like this, so to speak. But the Inspector turned to me again. "Just two more questions, Miss Julie."

I was disappointed. I would have liked to know who that person who left at 8:30 was. Evidently Mrs. Sardon had told him.

"First," he was saying, "suppose you describe to us the pen you borrowed from Miss Sinclair."

"Well," I answered, "it was a sort of mottled green, giving the effect of glass. I am not sure of the make; it was a lady's pen with a green gold band around it."

The Inspector was making some notes. He continued to write as he asked, "Any identifying marks you noticed?"

"Nothing. Oh, yes, her monogram was on it, CBS, engraved on the gold band."

"Good. You are sure you returned it?"

"Oh, positive," (Dicky later confirmed this. Little did I ever dream how important that pen was going to be to me!)

"That is a strange thing, Miss Julie, for it has now disappeared. The letter was written in ink, yet there was not a pen of any description to be found in the place. If you are sure," I realized then how keen and hard his eyes could be, "you returned it."

"I know I did!" I exclaimed, "why she had it in her hand and sort of waved it when she told Miss Sassa she had letters to write."

"Then perhaps the pen will lead us to the murderer."

And did I shudder later when I recalled that remark! You're asking me!

"One other thing. Do you remember any more conversation that night interest us?"

"No-o," I answered slowly, thinking hard.

"What else did you talk about?"

"We talked about a book she was reading from the Book Shop; they rent books out, you know. It was a biography of the man who wrote 'Moby Dick.'"

"No, I don't believe it would be of any use to us. Well, Miss Julie, I guess that's all. You have been very helpful, and I may need you again. Now, if Melvin Wright is waiting outside, send him in, will you?"

"Yes, sir. Goodbye. Do call me if I can help any more."

FLUSH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste, poisonous matter may develop, causing serious trouble. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS, which have been used successfully by millions of people for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to flush out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes. Get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist.

DETTON, WOLF DRAW IN ARENA GRAPPLE

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 9.—They hung out the "Standing Room Only" sign last night at the Arena and while 3,000 persons cheered themselves hoarse, Dean Detton, of Salt Lake City, wrestled to a draw with Chief Little Wolf in the feature match.

Detton and Little Wolf each scored a fall, and each seemed bent on winning, but the 90-minute time limit interfered. The final bell clanged as the Indian lay wriggling on the mat with his shoulders a scant few inches from touching the canvas.

The Salt Lake City entry destroyed all the illusions that most persons have about Redmen being able to withstand horrible torture when he made Little Wolf quit after 43 minutes and 22 seconds of vicious grappling. Detton tugged and pulled the Indian's left foot until it seemed that it must soon come popping out of its socket. Wolf beat the floor and groaned in his best fashion as the fans called for his scalp. Finally Detton continued to apply additional pressure until the Wolf wilted and quit.

After the 10-minute intermission, Little Wolf came back fresh. He slipped out of several precarious situations and after 16 minutes and 10 seconds of more groaning and grunting managed to slip his "Indian Death Lock" on Detton. The latter struggled feebly and succumbed for the second fall.

With the watch running during the intermission, only four minutes and 28 seconds remained of the 90-minute time-limit when the pair returned for the third fall. Yet that short period was filled with action that had the fans standing on their seats. Detton had the upper hand at the very outset, only to come dangerously near defeat when the Indian applied his favorite grip. The Salt Lake City grappler managed to pull himself under the ropes, then started a counter-attack that ended with the bell. Detton weighed 224, while Little Wolf tipped the beam at 231.

Three Teams To Fight Tonight For Leadership

One of the three teams in a deadlock for first place in the Bristol Amateur Basketball League is certain to be eliminated from the first half race tonight as the circuit resumes its schedule with two games being played on the Italian Mutual Aid floor.

The Odd Fellows and the Moose, two of the trio of clubs tied for the leadership, clash in the second game of the night in what promises to be the most interesting tilt of the half. A capacity crowd is expected to fill the basketball hall to witness Noy McGinley's boys battle with the minions of George Hermann.

McGinley will use Joe Roe and Green at the forward positions with Herbie Lawrence at center. His guards will be "Gige" Dougherty and Eddie Dugan. Hermann will start Frankovic, Hines, Smith, Weideman and Hibbs.

If Marty Fallon's Hibernians succeed in toppling the Third Ward from its position at the top of the loop it will make the league race more interesting as the Pikers still have another tilt to play with the Moose. A victory for the Rangers will enable them to keep in a deadlock for first place.

The first game will begin at 8:00 o'clock sharp.

STOMACH SUFFERERS AVOID LIFE OF MISERY WITH NEW MINERALIZED PLANT JUICE DISCOVERY!

Remarkable Compound of 4 Blood Minerals and Tropical Juice Frees Thousands from Grip of Stomach Agony, Acid, Gas, Indigestion, Headaches, Constipation Poisons. Look 10 Years Younger. Sufferers See Results OVERNIGHT!

Now Rejoice in New Strength, Keen Appetite and Sound Sleep

"Stomach Trouble" is the most insidious threat to human health and happiness today. For years desperate thousands have been seeking to conquer this most common of human afflictions. Now Science makes the startling revelation that often we innocently treat the symptoms instead of the diseases—that the cause of 90 percent of so-called "Stomach Trouble" often lies OUTSIDE the stomach—in the poisons and wastes breeding in unclean bowels.

If you could look inside the 30 feet of food pipes within you, you would know what causes your gnawing distress, the heartburn, bloating, gas, acid conditions, and why you often suffer raging headaches, sleeplessness, nervousness and body weakness.

Often unbeknown to the victim, the intestinal pipes are lined with countless layers of slimy wastes, breeding millions of vicious disease germs and poisons. No wonder the tissues and organs of the body, soaked with toxic poisons, break down, and cause you to become a human wreck long before your time. No wonder you look worn, haggard, pale and sallow. No wonder ordinary medicines fail.
